J. ED WILSON DIES IN HOSPITAL

Local Man, Who Was Committed to Asylum at Madison Monday, Expires in Four Days.

BODY WILL ARRIVE TONIGHT

He is Survived by Two Children, One Brother and Two Sisters— Funeral Sunday.

J. Ed Wilson, who was committed to the southern insane hospital at Madison from this city only last Monday, died there last night about ten o'clock. His demise was rather unexpected, although it was thought that his physical condition was such that he would not live very long.

Mr. Wilson had been an invalid for a number of years and had scarcely been able to walk due to a very severe attack of locomotor ataxia. Most of the time in recent years, he has been wheeled around in an invalid's chair.

Recently Mr. Wilson's mind had been affected and it was feared that he would do himself harm. He made a futile attempt to take his own life one week ago last Saturday night and after that it was deemed best to confine him in a hospital. He was adjudged insane by a commission and taken to Madison. He realized that he was being taken to a hospital on his trip to Madison last Monday and he was glad that such was the case.

Mr. Wilson was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson, both of whom are dead. He was fifty-five years of age. He was a resident of Rushville most of his life and was commonly known as "Tommy."

Mr. Wilson had been married twice during his life and both of his wives are dead. There were two children by his first wife and none by his second wife. His son, Estel Wilson, and two sisters, Mrs. Ben L. Smith and Mrs. Claude Cambren, all of this city.

The body will arrive here this evening over the Pennsylvania and will be taken directly to the home of Frank Wilson. A short funeral service will be held tomorrow after which burial will take place in East Hill cemetery.

RETURNING HOME.

The westbound Dispatch on the I. & C. this morning was crowded with Tri Kappa delegates and visitors returning to their homes.

LOCAL MEN ARE INVITED.

Douglas Morris and Will M. Sparks, both ex-judges of the Rush-Shelby circuit court, together with Lieutenant Governor Frank J. Hall, have been invited to attend the annual fish fry which will be given at Flat Rock cave in Shelby county by the Shelby County Bar Association Friday. The local men have been guests at the event before. It is looked forward to as a source of much fun.

RAIN HELPS CORN.

A number of farmers were in the city today as the rain of last night and today made it impossible to do much work. They are all pleased with the rains as they say that the corn was in need of moisture. There is some hay and wheat down, but it is not thought that will be damaged to any great extent.

Among the new parasols is one of natural colored pongee with an over-cover also of pongee. This is finished with a fringe of cream-colored silk ribbon braid.

SAILS ON BERLIN TODAY

Miss Henrietta Coleman Leaves New York For Tour.

Among the passengers sailing on the Steamship Berlin of the North German Lloyd line today from New York for Naples and Genoa, via Gibraltar and Algiers, was Miss Henrietta Coleman of this city. She is accompanied by a party from Chicago and will spend the summer abroad. She expects to study in Paris.

WOULD BE ROBBER HAS LITTLE LUCK

Nathan Fletcher Discovers Man on Porch—Series of Attempts Reported to Police.

HAVE DESCRIPTION OF MEN.

A series of robberies was attempted last night in the northeast part of the city, and the residents of that district say there has not been a night this week but what an attempt was made to enter some house. About 12 o'clock last night Nathan Fletcher, colored, heard someone trying to enter his home at the corner of Eighth and Cherry streets. The screen door was torn from its hinges by the would be robber and this awakened Mr. Fletcher, who rushed to the door. The man heard him coming and fled. City Marshall Harlow was called and was given a good description of the man. An attempt was made to enter several other homes, but the robber was not successful. The police believe it to be the same man who tried to force an entrance to the Fletcher home. Those who reported to the police as having heard someone trying to enter their homes include Squire Kratzer, John Johnson and Nelson Brown.

TRAIN AND TRACTION CAR KILLS HORSE

Runs Into Small Herd in Shelby County and One Carcas is Carried on Engine.

HAD TO CALL THE SECTION MEN

The Big Four and the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction Company made a big killing of live stock between this city and Fairland shortly before the midnight hour last night, says the Shelbyville Democrat. Four horses owned by Spence Harrell and one owned by Thomas Tillison, both of near Fairland, were killed. The Big Four got four of the horses and the traction line, the fifth, the horse struck by the traction car belonging to Mr. Harrell. The animals had escaped from the pasture and had wandered upon the right of way of the railway companies and were killed late in the night.

The traction car that reaches this city from Indianapolis after the midnight hour killed the Harrell horse and the Big Four west-bound passenger that leaves here at 11:01 caught the others. One of the horses was carried by the passenger train to Fairland and the section men there had to be called out to dislodge the body from the pilot of the engine before the train could proceed on its journey. The dead animals were removed to the Bausback factory today.

TRI KAPPA GIRLS HAVE EVACUATED

HAD PRAISE FOR RUSHVILLE

Dance Was Fitting Climax And Entertainment at Lytle's Was a Happy Surprise.

The Tri Kappas have evacuated. The last stragglers left Rushville this afternoon after one of the most successful State conventions of the sorority that was ever held. The praise which the local girls have received for the manner in which they entertained the visitors, has come from all sides. Many were the guests who declared that the meeting was far better than any ever held and that the hospitality shown them was exceedingly gratifying.

Numerous were the compliments paid the merchants of their city for the interest which they took in the event and the honor they showed the visiting girls by decorating so lavishly in the colors of the sorority. "I would like to have a picture of this city's business district to take back home. We are thinking about getting the convention in the future and I would like to show our people how they do things down at Rushville." That was an expression from a Lebanon girl. Other girls who attended the convention called for copies of the local newspapers giving accounts of the convention, that they might show "the folks back home."

The convention festivities were closed last evening with probably the most pretentious and most largely attended dance which was ever held here. It is estimated that were at least two hundred and fifty young people on the floor at one time. The dancing continued until after midnight and even then many of the guests were loathe to leave the dance hall. A few of the girls went home yesterday afternoon, but even a greater number came in time for the dance. Young men from all over the State began arriving here on the traction line, railroads and automobiles early in the afternoon.

The Modern Woodmen hall, which hardly provided enough space for the large crowd, took on a new appearance. The interior of the dance hall was made more attractive than it has ever been at any other social function held there. The decorations were all in green with black and white pennants.

Wires were stretched across the room about eight feet above the floor and supported masses of green boughs. It gave the effect of an immense green canopy which covered the whole room. In that manner the baroness of the high ceiling was done away with. The walls were all arranged with green boughs so that the hall seemed a veritable garden. Palms and flowers were used in the decorations. Electric fans were stationed a few feet apart along the walls so that the suffering from the intense heat was somewhat alleviated.

The grand march was led by the retiring president, Miss Grace Norwood of Lebanon and partner. She was followed by the new grand president, Miss Hazel Harrison of Columbia City and company. The retiring grand vice-president, Miss Minnie Wink of Knightstown, and partner came next and were followed by the grand vice-president-elect, Miss Jean Bishop of this city and company. The other retiring grand officers and their successors, together with their partners, followed

MAKESHIM THINK OF WARMER PLACE

Scutherner Mops Sweat Off His Brow And Then Wants to Get Some Religion.

NORTHERNERS HAVE SHIVERS

Evangelist Orr "Sets 'Em Up" to the Preachers, Their Families and Newspaper Reporters.

"I have been trying to get you fellows hot for the last two weeks and now I am going to cool you off," said the Rev. W. W. Orr as his guests, the ministers of the city and their wives, together with several newspaper men gathered around a long table at Wollcott's drug store this morning. The evangelist "set 'em up" to the ice cream and an enjoyable hour was spent while the Rev. Mr. Orr entertained his guests with some humorous stories of his experience during the thirty-two years that he has been in this chosen work.

Evangelist Orr said that he seldom ever got any calls from the northern States to preach during the summer months, while that was the very time that the southern people want evangelists. "It takes shivers to make the northerner think of his soul," he continued, "and the boiling sun to remind the southerner that he is in need of some spiritual rejuvenation. When the man down South gets his crops laid by and is mopping the sweat off of his brow, it seems to make him think of a warmer place and he wants some religion."

It will be remembered that Evangelist Orr married a couple at the tabernacle after the regular services Wednesday night and it was that sum which he used to buy the "eats." The fact was recalled that every preacher in the city, with the exception of the Rev. A. W. Jamieson, had had a wedding since the revival began. It was the common belief that it was June rather than the revival that was the reason for the presence of the matrimonial germ.

The guests of the evangelist were the Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Jamieson, the Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ross, the Rev. and Mrs. John B. Meacham and sons, Jack and James Stewart, the Rev. Mr. Jeffries and several newspaper men. The Rev. and Mrs. Cyrus Yocom were not present as they have not yet returned from Cincinnati.

PRINTER "COMES BACK"

W. F. Butler of New York Visits Old Friends Here.

W. F. Butler, a former printer of Rushville and Greenfield, now of Jamaica, N. Y., came to attend the festivities incident to the annual commencement exercises at the I. S. and S. Orphans' Home, which took place this week, says the Knightsown Banner. Mr. Butler is accompanied by his wife, a former governess at the Home. Jamaica is a city of 40,000 and is now a part of Greater New York. At present he has the foremanship of a big printing plant known as the Long Island Farmer, so named because it was started in a country district years ago. Mr. Butler expects to visit here, at Indianapolis, Greenfield and Rushville for a week before returning to New York, and his wife will probably remain until September or later. They have two children, a boy and a girl.

Unsettled tonight and probably Sunday.

DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Joseph Buschhohle Succumbs at Her Home Here.

Mrs. Joseph Buschhohle, 26 years old, died this morning after a long illness at her home in North Willow street. Mrs. Buschhohle was formerly Miss Eva Billings and had been married only eight months. Besides her husband she is survived by four brothers, Orval of Indianapolis, Will of near Milroy, Frank and Ed of this city, and one sister, Miss Caroline Billings. The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at two o'clock at the residence, conducted by the Rev. Cyrus Yocom. Burial will take place in East Hill cemetery.

WILL NOT ORDER RE-ASSESSMENT

County Board of Review Denies the Story in Connersville News and Will Not Reject Assessment.

FIND SEVERAL IRREGULARITIES

The county board of review, which is in session in the auditor's office, made a statement today positively denying a story in the Connersville News that they would order a re-assessment. The story in the News is alleged to have come from a Rushville man who stated that the board had found several irregularities of assessments of property in this city and would demand a re-assessment. It is true the board of review has found several irregularities, but will not order a re-assessment although they have this power.

NOT AN EXPERIENCE MEET FOR WATSON

Former Congressman Has a Ready Answer For Evangelist When Question is Put.

POLITICAL DISCUSSION ON

James E. Watson wanted it understood at last night's meeting at the tabernacle that it was not an experience service. A question was put to him by Evangelist Orr and that's the way he replied. The evangelist had been discussing the "wet" and "dry" question and said that he was a Democrat when he could be. He declared that there were Democrats down in North Carolina who swallowed the whole ticket and the candidates with it.

"We've got some of the same kind here," observed a man out in the audience.

"And some of the same kind of Republicans," was a rejoinder from another part of the audience.

"How about that, Watson?" asked the evangelist jokingly.

"I don't know," replied the former congressman. "This is not an experience meeting."

KNEELS DOWN IN SAWDUST TO PRAY

Evangelist Orr and Audience Go on Knees to Ask For Rushville's Salvation.

ASKS PEOPLE TO BE ON SQUARE

Declares Men, Claiming to be Christians, Must Give Account of Their Vote on Saloon.

Rushville that is that part of it which was in the tabernacle last evening, went on its knees and prayed to God that the unsaved accept Jesus Christ. Practically everyone in the audience kneeled down in the sawdust, following the example of Evangelist Orr.

It was near the close of the first meeting and few had come forward. Evangelist Orr put the question up to the audience. "Let's be square with each other and with ourselves," he said.

"Every one in the audience who believes they are living a life within Christ and believes they are saved tonight please stand." Only a few people arose, possibly twenty in the whole crowd. Then the evangelist urged that all go down on their knees and pray for the salvation of Rushville. The kneeling was general. Short prayers were made by people in the audience. Then the evangelist asked that all who have accepted Christ and who are hiding behind the blood of Jesus Christ stand.

Then the invitation was continued. Evangelist Orr said that he did not intend to hold an after meeting, but later he concluded to follow the same plan as he had on other nights. Only five went forward before the after meeting. At the conclusion of it, there were twelve who had confessed their sins and accepted Christ. That makes a total of one hundred and seventy-three who have joined the various churches of Rushville since the meeting began.

The Rev. Mr. Jeffries had the opening services. He said that he once saw a cartoon in which a gay-dressed society woman was bidding farewell to the devil for forty days. He pointed out that it was impossible to live the Christian life away from pleasures and evil for forty days and then return to the old life of sin. Mrs. Ross sang a solo, "Shadows." Mr. Ross sang a solo, which was warmly applauded.

Evangelist Orr took for the topic of his sermon the story of the rich man and Lazarus, the beggar, from the Bible. He pointed out that the beggar died and was hauled away, but he was carried by angels to Abraham's bosom. The rich man died, he said, was buried and went to hell. He pointed out that the rich man had a big funeral, the lodges turned out in a body, large bouquets of flowers were sent and the preacher preached him into heaven. Then he said when the rich man was in hell and looked up and saw Lazarus, he asked that Lazarus might be allowed to come down, dip his fingers in water and cool the rich man's brow. The evangelist stated that he asked for only the water on his finger tips, because as in this life, a struggling man, who expects nothing, will not ask much.

"I have preached a good many funerals in my life," continued the evangelist, "and I have seen large processions move to the cemetery at the funeral of some rich man. As soon as the ceremony is finished they gallop back to town. And on the way I have known relatives to ask, 'You know how his will reads?' or 'What did he leave?' They are concerned only about the old hog's money after they get him under the ground."

"The lost in hell are more concerned on page 4.

To What Extent Should Indiana Be Reforested

Recently the State Board of Forestry offered the school children of Indiana a prize of ten dollars each for the best essays on the subject, "To What Extent Should Indiana be Reforested; Give Reason." The prizes have just been awarded and the last of the series is printed herewith. It was written by Mary Mason of the seventh grade of Mecca, Ind. It follows:

First of all any spot on earth, (therefore Indiana) should bear upon its surface all that nature, and by nature we mean the wisdom of God endowed it.

Trees, flowers and grasses are a connecting link between heaven and earth, and where man has intentionally or otherwise, robbed the earth of this charm, what is more his duty than so far as in his power to replace it.

Looking at the matter from a purely practical point of view, it is easily seen that the economic value of timber even in a growing state, is sufficient reason for reforesting the land.

Men have learned too late that the leaves of the growing trees expire great quantities of water which taken care of by the sun, winds and varieties of moisture furnishes to the world the showers which are everything to the vegetation.

It is said that Indiana soil will grow as good or better timber in accordance as any other state in the Union.

We can readily perceive the protection which heavy forestry affords our crops from cold waves, droughts and such inconveniences which are often to be dealt with in this part of the country.

Where there is no timber, ground ceases to build and improve because of the lack of falling leaves and twigs which from year to year add to the richness of the coat of loam which is so valuable.

Timber is valuable for fuel as well as building purposes as we know the coal will soon be gone, as there is but a small quantity at the present time and fuel will have to be imported which is a heavy expense to the State.

Ground denuded of trees becomes disfigured by the soil being washed away by heavy rainfall because of the lack of roots which is between the bedrock and the soil proper.

This disfiguration of the surface of the land is noticeable in our own state which has been denuded of its forests only a short while, and as the years pass the condition will of course become worse.

Travelers in Spain and China notice this condition even in that far country which is every day growing worse.

While men have learned to make buildings without so much timber as was thoroughly used, there are places and indeed ever will be, where nothing will answer, so well as the Walnuts, Oaks and Pines for the beautiful architecture which is always wanted in a building.

Summing up, then, the reasons why Indiana should be re-forested we would say, to replace in a small measure, at least, nature's primitive adornment, which like the trimming on the maiden's hats is the portion that attracts; to preserve from greater disfiguration the land surface itself, the roots of the trees, and the foliage mass preventing in a way the washing away of soil, the making of ditches, gutters, etc., on slopes and plains; the furnishing in a purely economical way, if not ornamental, of material for furniture, casings and building furnishings. Now, like the division of labor among the people of a community or the members of the body, so the trees that drew their sustenance from the earth, should and will return a hundred fold that which it has taken by laying their coverlet of leaves to be converted into loam by adding their tons of water to be returned as rain to feed spring and river.

Added to all this we have the shelter from storm and sun, the nuts, the home of birds, bees and beast, in short it is impossible to enumerate the many uses which trees supply in the world. Bryant may well ask us the question, "What do we plant when we plant a tree?"

The nations of the old world are already at work replacing the groves that were ruthlessly destroyed, and are sparing neither expense nor labor in doing so.

No one who considers the matter in a fair light but will add their voice in commendation of the work not only in the old world, but in that much loved section of the New, which bears the name of Indiana. Since "The groves were God's first Temples" let us replace those temples which our own hands have so carelessly torn down.

POINTERS FOR MOTORISTS.

How the drivers affect the wear of tires.

The importance of careful driving cannot be overestimated if the life of the car and its tires are considered.

The effect of sudden and sharp use of the brake day after day is bound to damage the thread of the envelope and strain the beads and side walls. The layers of canvas are overtaxed and little by little the threads stretch until they reach the breaking point. Brakes should always be applied gently and unless it is absolutely necessary to pull up your car within a short distance, let the stop be as gradual as possible.

Another important point in driving is the proper manipulation of your clutch. Never make a violent start-slip in the clutch quietly and easily—in this way protecting the mechanism of your entire car.

Sharp corners should always be made carefully and you can regulate your speed to round the turn with little or no use of brakes. As a last word, always remember that your tires are rubber and canvas and not steel so to get the maximum service from them drive thoughtfully.

COLLISION TO BE A FEATURE

Two Fifty Ton Engines to Collide Head-on at Trainmen's Celebration in Indianapolis.

PROGRAM FOR THE FOURTH

President Taft and Party Will be Guests at Event—Other Things Planned.

ISpecial to the Daily Republican. Indianapolis, Ind., June 24—Definite information has been received by the Associated Brotherhoods of Railroad men in train service of the acceptance by President Taft of their invitation to him to attend, on the afternoon of July 4th, the entertainment that will be given by the Associated Brotherhoods of the state fair grounds at Indianapolis. Definite plans for suitably caring for him and his party at the fair grounds are being prepared. It is probable that a special stand for the President and his party will be erected in front of the grandstand. There will be suitable decorations in honor of his presence, and various details of arrangements in relation to his presence are being discussed.

The principal event on the program for the afternoon will be the head-on collision between two 55-ton locomotives. The collision will take place in the infield of the race track, opposite the grandstand, but at a sufficient distance away to avoid any danger to spectators. The locomotives that will be used were formerly in the service of the Chicago Great Western railroad. The length of the track that is being built for the collision, and the fact that the locomotives are not only heavy in themselves but will be accompanied by their tenders, gives assurance that the impact will be terrific. Not only will the collision be at a sufficient distance from the grandstand to avoid any danger to spectators in the stand, but precaution will be taken to prevent persons from approaching within the "danger zone" of the collision. In addition to a detail of police from the Indianapolis police force, there will be in service on the grounds a large number of uninformed special officers, including some mounted men. No one, aside from those directly connected with the event, will be allowed within the infield of the race track.

The program for the 4th includes a number of other interesting events, among them being motorcycle races, horse racing, a balloon ascension and parachute leap, dancing and various other attractions. There are seven motorcycle races on the program, and confidence is expressed that the present motorcycle record of 57 seconds for the fair grounds track will be badly shattered.

In addition to the entertainment on July 4th, the Associated Brotherhoods will give a general picnic at the fair grounds on the 3d. The program of events for the 3d is practically the same as for the 4th, except there will be no head-on collision on the 3d.

Reports already received at the headquarters of the Associated Brotherhoods show that many people from outside the State will attend their entertainment. As an indication of the interest being taken outside the state, it might be well to state that assurance has been received that a special train will be run from Champaign, Ill., to Indianapolis for the convenience of persons who wish to be present on the 4th.

CHERRY SLUG ATTACKS TREES

Leaves Turn Brown And Fruit Does Not Mature Properly When Parasite Lives on Them.

RECIPE TO GET RID OF IT

Fruit Grower Recommends Dry Slaked Lime or Any Dust to Stop up Pores.

Have your cherry trees taken on a dead appearance? Have the leaves turned brown and the cherries remained on the trees unripe?

If they have, you probably have investigated to find the cause for destruction of the leaves. And you probably have found the small snail-like insect that has fastened itself on the top of the leaf and gradually is sucking the very life from the plant—you have found the "slug" whose work probably has caused more damage to the cherry crop during the present year than all other adverse conditions combined.

While orchards have been affected by the unmerciful charge of the insect, Rush county is turning out one of the largest cherry crops in its history, although the slugs have been at work on the leaves of the trees. The spring of 1912 may see dead trees where in the summer of 1911 they were bent over with their fruit. And the slug will have caused the damage.

Then comes the question that is worrying every one whose trees are attacked by the insect—"how can they be exterminated?" Thousands are to be found on each tree and there seems no apparent way of getting rid of the destroyers. But fruit men sit back and smile—there is a way to do it and do it right. And it's simple.

"Dry, slaked lime is the answer to the question," said a fruit grower. "The dusting of dry slaked lime over the tree is sure to bring about the extermination of the pest. If slaked lime is not obtainable road dust or anything that will effectively stop up the pores of the worms will cause the death of the worm."

"That the ravages of the worm are being felt throughout the county is evident from the telephone calls that I have received in the last few days.

Although my 500 trees have not been affected by the pest I have had some experience with the worm and know the surest remedy and death producer. One thousand bushels of the very best cherries will come from my trees in a short time one thousand bushels of cherries growing on trees that have not yet felt the ravages of the greatest of cherry pests—the cherry slug."

VENUS IS VISIBLE.

Did you ever see a star in the daytime? One can be seen now even on the brightest sunny day and at noon, if you know where to look for it. It is Venus now the evening star, which blazes out so brightly in the west after sunset.

Venus is now approaching its farthest distance from the sun, and because of this fact gets far enough away from that bright orb to shine out by its own reflected light—even in the face of the sun.

It is easy to see the "day star" when you have located it, but for one who has to search the whole bright blue sky under the blaze of the sun it seems a hopeless task. Here are some general directions that will enable you to get in the field of the "day star."

Venus is about three hours behind the sun—that is to the east of it. That means that when the sun is at its zenith to the eastern horizon; or when the sun is one-half day down from the noon mark to the western horizon, Venus is at zenith.

Egypt has a desert railroad which runs forty-five miles in a straight line; but the longest straight piece of railway line in the world is from Nyngan to Bourke, in New South Wales. This railway runs 126 miles on a level in a straight line.

Department of Agriculture Declares Bad Egg Must Go

The rotten egg, the broken egg, the cracked egg, the dirty egg, and the shrunken egg must go. This is the edict of the Bureau of Chemistry of the Agricultural Department, and this bureau has many times demonstrated that it means business when it goes out after foodstuffs that are not fit for human consumption. The bureau expects to accomplish a good deal under the federal pure food law, but it expects greater things from state authorities, for the reason that only a small per cent of the eggs consumed in the United States enter into interstate commerce. The bureau officials also look to public sentiment to help win the fight that has been undertaken, says a news bureau.

According to statistics compiled by the government authorities, 2,460,000 dozen eggs are produced in the United States annually. The value of this crop is estimated at $45,000,000. The Bureau of Chemistry does not pretend to have accurate information as to the percentage of the egg crop marketed that is bad, but it has investigated the subject sufficiently to satisfy itself that the percentage is large.

A record of 258,996 dozen eggs that were shipped from nine states into New York city was kept. It shows that of these 258,996 dozen eggs, 3.48 per cent were rotten, 8.93 per cent were cracked, 10.15 per cent were stale, and 12.58 per cent dirty. This record covered a full year's shipment. Calculating on the basis of New York's egg receipts, which average about 4,256,320 cases a year, it is seen that the rotten eggs going into New York City in one year amounted to 4,443,598 dozen.

The food research laboratory of the Bureau of Chemistry, which has been making a special study of the egg situation, points out that though the production of eggs is widespread only the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Texas, Tennessee and Kentucky produce more than are consumed within their own borders, and this production does not cover the entire year, but only those months when climatic conditions are favorable to laying. The food research laboratory answers the question, "What causes contribute to the list of undesirable and loss producing grades of eggs?" by saying that there are three main causes: (1) Climatic condition. (2) Careless or deliberately bad marketing. (3) Poor care of the poultry on the farm.

The research bureau reaches the decision that the first responsibility for the low quality of market eggs rests on the farmer, and that after him come the country produce dealer or storekeeper and the shipper who does not have artificial refrigeration. It is pointed out that usually the farmer gathers his eggs daily, or he may gather them at irregular intervals. The chances are that every sound shelled egg goes to market regardless of the condition inside the shell. The bureau's investigation showed that

A Few 'Cascares' Cure Constipation

Pleasant, Gentle, Though the Most Effective Remedy in the World For Sluggish Bowels of a Lazy Liver.

In the old days physic was dreadful—calomel, castor oil, salts or cathartics. And they were worse than they seemed, for they irritated the stomach and bowels. They acted much as pepper acts in the nostrils. They flooded the bowels with fluids. But those fluids were digestive juices. And a waste today means a lack tomorrow. You secured relief, but you were actually worse off than without it.

It's different with Cascares. Their effect is the same as that of laxative foods, or of exercise. They stimulate the bowels to natural action. No gripping. They act as a bowel tonic.

The old way, too, was to take large doses of physic. People waited until the bowels were clogged. The new way is to take one Casaret when you need it. Carry the box in your pocket or purse. Ward off the troubles instantly. The modern plan is to keep at your best. The old way wasted too many good hours. Get a 10 cent box of Cascares now.

after eggs are gathered on the farm they are generally kept where the housewife can most conveniently get at them for household use, not where the temperature is low and the air fresh. Neither does the farmer have any regular time for taking this stock of eggs to market.

In the spring, when they are most plentiful and the market is falling, he is apt to go weekly, or wait until the egg peddler calls at the farm. When the hot weather comes on and the lay falls off he waits for a larger number, or is too busy with "crops" to drive to town, meanwhile the shrinking and incubation is going on rapidly, and, to quote the language of the bureau, "as a last insult to the hen which laid a perfectly fresh egg and the consumer who wants a perfectly fresh egg, he often goes to market with an umbrella over himself, but with the basket or box of eggs exposed to the summer sun." In the autumn, with a still smaller lay and a rising market, the farmer holds his eggs for higher winter prices.

The country merchant, the Bureau of Chemistry says, handles eggs as a by-product, taking them in exchange for merchandise. He makes his profits on the merchandise taken in trade, not on eggs, frequently giving an inflated price for them to hold the trade of the desired consumer. He, too, is more apt to be careless of them while they are in his possession, storing them in hot or damp quarters and holding for high prices when production is low.

JIM CROW CARS IN VOGUE.

"Jim Crow" cars are being run over the C. & O. division of Indiana Railway says the Richmond Palladium.

This innovation in northern railroading, through the restrictions governing the use of certain cars by white people and other coaches by negroes, are not provided in any orders from officials of the line, is creating quite a little stir along the line, which some day promises to be the heaviest traveled route between Cincinnati and Chicago.

Neither is it the regular custom for all passenger trains on the Indiana line to have "Jim Crow" coaches, but the fact remains that on several occasions trains with these coaches attached have been run over the line for at least a part of the way. The cars belong to the equipment of the C. & O. system proper. South of the Ohio river the laws of practically all the states compel negroes to be segregated in their travel from the whites. Whether purposely or more through accident some of these coaches with "Jim Crow" apartments were transferred to the Indiana branch line is not known.

The laws of Indiana admit the equality of the negro and the white in travel and that they be segregated is an impossible demand. Much is accomplished in this regard though by the signs over the entrance doors, "For Whites Only" and "For Negroes Only." Officials of the company here state there have been no orders compelling the trainmen to see that the races are separated when the coaches with Jim Crow apartments are attached to the train. Some of the railroaders say they believe it would be a popular move and no different in its intent than the custom in some of the local theaters to seat the negroes and whites apart from each other.

A Timely Suggestion

HOPKINS ON THE LORIMER STAND

Former Senator Says He Had Been "Approached."

OFFER OF TEN VOTES MADE HIM

He Answered Proposition by Telling the Man Who Made the Offer That He Was a Candidate For the United States Senate and Not the Penitentiary—Declines to Commit Himself on Lorimer's Position.

Washington, June 24.—Ex-United States Senator Albert J. Hopkins of Illinois, who was defeated for re-election in 1908 by Senator Lorimer, was a witness before the senate committee investigating charges of corruption in Lorimer's election. Mr. Hopkins gave evidence of how several members of the Illinois legislature who had previously supported him visited his room the night before the election and pledged their support, but on the next day, when the vote was taken, they switched their support to Senator Lorimer. When asked the reason for this sudden change of political fealty Senator Hopkins said: "I have been told that after leaving my room in the St. Nicholas hotel at Springfield they went to Mr. Lorimer's room."

Didnt Want to Answer.

"Have you any knowledge or belief that improper influences—money or otherwise—were used to cause these men to transfer their allegiance from you to Senator Lorimer?" asked Senator Jones.

"I do not think I should be required to answer that question," commented Mr. Hopkins.

"That is just the sort of information this committee desires," replied Chairman Dillingham.

"I have no specific or definite information that improper influences were used upon these men," said Mr. Hopkins.

"I felt that I was defeated by a coalition of Democrats and Republicans for an office to which I was entitled because I had received a plurality of the votes in the senatorial primaries. When I was defeated by Mr. Lorimer I tried to put the whole incident behind me and forget it. I retired to private life and tried to be a good citizen. I realized that the people have no use for a man with a grievance. If the committee wishes to know whether I have definite and specific legal knowledge of instances of alleged corruption, I have not."

Ten Votes If He Did "Right."

"Senator Landee of Moline told me," said Mr. Hopkins, "that a Democrat told him that I could have ten Democratic votes if I did right. I told him that I did not want Democratic votes. I also informed him that I was a candidate for the United States senate, not the penitentiary."

"What was your impression of this offer?" asked Mr. Healy.

"I understood that it meant that there was to be a money consideration," replied Mr. Hopkins.

"Did he tell you who the ten Democrats were who would vote for you?"

"No," answered Mr. Hopkins.

"You never suspected that Senator Lorimer used any dishonorable means to defeat you?" asked Senator Jones.

"I decline to answer that question," replied Mr. Hopkins.

MAY FINALLY AWAKE

Family of Hazel Schmidt Take Hope of Her Condition.

Vandalia, Ill., June 24.—Miss Hazel Schmidt, whose sixty-five days of constant sleep baffled the skill of physicians and specialists, awakened and remained awake fully two hours and a half.

All the time she was awake she was rational and conversed with members of the family. She inquired what month it was and asked to see the daily papers. She was unable to read owing to her weakened condition.

Miss Schmidt was given some nourishment and again fell asleep. She awakened an hour later for a short time.

Members of the family, who are worn out with keeping constant vigil at her bedside, and who have begun to despair of the girl's recovery, were overjoyed at the first signs of what they believed to be the end of her long sleep.

They Shut Down Power Plant.

Portland, Ind., June 24.—When Superintendent B. W. Bissell of the city electric light plant discharged William Headington, a lineman, for alleged insubordination in refusing to connect up a meter, and the city council backed the superintendent in his action, seven other employees of the department left their posts. Before doing so they shut down the power plant and for more than half an hour the city was in darkness.

Seamen Return to Work.

Southampton, England, June 24.—The strike of seamen, which has seriously inconvenienced many of the shipping lines, particularly at the English ports, for several days, was finally ended when the employees of the White Star Line accepted the terms of the company and returned to work. The other lines had already compromised with the strikers.

LUMBER TRUST GETS BAD JOLT

Fourteen Indictments In Judge Landis's Court.

VARIOUS STATE ASSOCIATIONS

Comprising the So-Called Trust Are Named and Their Respective Secretaries Are Indicted on the Charge of Violating Sherman Anti-Trust Law—Secretary Searce of Indiana Lumber Dealers' Association Included.

Chicago, June 24.—The special federal grand jury which has just made its return before Judge Landis in the United States district court, indicted fourteen persons identified with the lumber industry or so-called secretaries' associations, commonly characterized as "the trust." They are charged with violating the criminal provisions of the Sherman anti-trust act. Those indicted are: Arthur S. Holmes, Detroit, secretary of the Michigan Retail Dealers' association and editor of The Scout, a trade paper owned and controlled by lumber dealers.

George P. Sweet, also a secretary to the Michigan association.

Willard C. Hollis, Minneapolis, secretary of the Northwestern Lumbermen's association, composed of about 800 retail dealers in the states of North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and Iowa.

Perry Gorsuch, Kansas City, secretary of the Southwestern Lumbermen's association, composed of about 800 retail dealers in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma.

Bird Critchfield, Lincoln, Neb., secretary of the Nebraska Lumber Dealers' association, against which an injunction was secured by the state officials recently.

E. E. Hall, secretary of the Nebraska association.

Harry C. Scearce, Mooresville, Ind., secretary of the Retail Lumber Dealers' association of Indiana.

H. H. Hemenway and L. I. Peelman, Denver, secretary of the Colorado and Wyoming Lumber Dealers' association.

H. S. Adams, Chillicothe, secretary of the Union Association of Lumber Dealers and also of the Ohio Association of Retail Lumber Dealers, both Ohio concerns, and B. N. Hayward, Columbus, O., also secretary of the Ohio association.

A. L. Porter, Spokane, Wash., secretary of Western Retail Lumbermen's association, composed of retail dealers in Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California.

R. P. Bransford, Union City, Tenn., secretary of the Retail Lumber Dealers' association of West Tennessee and Kentucky.

A. C. Rightor, Pittsburgh, Pa., secretary of the Retail Lumber Dealers' association of Pennsylvania.

Each man is indicted on two counts, the first alleging a conspiracy among the retail dealers to restrain interstate trade and commerce between the manufacturer and wholesaler and the consumer, and the second charging a conspiracy to suppress and eliminate competition which ordinarily should exist between wholesaler and manufacturer and the retailer in supplying the consumer.

FIERCE FIGHTING

A Thousand Slain When Rebels Take Turkish Troops by Surprise.

London, June 24.—A belated dispatch that came by way of Eden records another disaster to the Turks, who were surprised by rebels. Ali Pasha's advance guard was attacked near Geezan and a thousand were killed and five hundred wounded. The rest fled into Geezan chased by the rebels.

A Turkish gunboat shelled Geezan, killing and wounding hundreds of fugitives and soldiers. The Turkish commander is missing. The Arabs captured six guns, 2,000 rifles and a quantity of stores.

RECEIVER FOR TRACTION COMPANY.

Indianapolis, June 24.—John E. Greeley of Jeffersonville has been appointed receiver for the Indianapolis & Louisville Traction company in federal court. The suit for a receivership was a "friendly" one, holders of $1,207,000 worth of the first bonds having assented to the arrangement with a view to reorganizing the company.

Had we been King George, we'd have slipped out to some justice of the peace in the next town, and saved all this fuss and feathers, by having the crown put on before just enough witnesses to make it legal.

What an awful job Mrs. Taft will have to count all those silver spoons daily, to see if burglars or the hired girl has got any of 'em!

"College girls listen to bacchanalate" is the way the newspapers head it up. Considering all dressmakers did for them, it takes faith to believe they listened.

Considerable dissatisfaction is reported in the ranks of the Progressive Republicans arising out of the candidacy of Senator LaFollette for the presidency. President Taft's advisers confidently assert that every western State with the probable exception of Wisconsin will go into the National convention in 1912 with Taft delegations. They carry their claims far enough to state that this represents the situation even if these delegations are headed by men like Senator Cummins of Iowa, Bristow of Kansas, and Works of California. The positive announcement is made that Senators Cummins of Iowa, Borah of Idaho, Brown of Nebraska, Dixon of Montana, and Kenson of Iowa, will support President Taft for renomination.

Any person who has made a careful study of the newspapers in towns of from 10,000 to 100,000 people, must be tremendously impressed with their enlargement in the last 10 to 15 years.

We have in mind the familiar face of one exchange published in a city of some 75,000 people. A dozen years ago it was very rare that this newspaper ran over 12 pages. Today it very frequently appears with 20 pages.

One or two pages of this increase is no doubt due to fuller news columns. In the main the change is caused by the enormous increase in advertising.

No sentiments of charity for that newspaper, which was very prosperous 12 years ago, or others of its class, can have caused this splendid growth. Rather it is because a group of merchants big and little are growing wealthy through the power of advertising. Where they used to use a column, they now use half a page or more. They do it because it is the cheapest form of salesmanship. And the same success and the same prosperity is coming right here to the men who have learned the efficiency of the newspaper advertisement.

EDITORIALETTES.

They say that this is what might be termed a "stick" day.

There is a man in this town who thinks he owns the United States since they commenced calling him "Uncle Sam" this morning.

They say that "Jim" Watson ought to know if anybody does whether Republicans swallow the whole ticket.

We suppose the bridegroom in all these June weddings is still wearing the conventional black, since little has been said about him.

And the dear June bride. We are willing to take a stab at most any kind of a description except that of what she wore when papa led her out on his arm.

That is to say, of course, that he did not feel her weight on his arm, she being a light and billowy creature.

Eastern man only recently fractured his jaw while yawning. The records don't show what he was doing, but we have figured that he was attending a council meeting.

Unfortunately there is a day of reckoning for everyone, even the remonstrator.

STIERS IS OUT OF THE GAME

Will Not be Able to Play Sunday at Richmond.

Charles Stiers, the Maxwell outfielder, will not be in the game Sunday at Richmond, says the New Castle Courier. Stiers' physical condition is such that his physician has ordered him to avoid violent exercise for a time and consequently he has temporarily withdrawn from the club. While Stiers' retirement will be a loss to the aggregation because of his timely swatting, Manager Williams fortunately has a squad on hand from which he can pick a substitute.

FACES A WATER FAMINE

New Castle Finds That Pressure is Far Below Level.

Over seven hundred thousand gallons of water were pumped into the city water mains Thursday by the pumps at the waterworks station, says the New Castle Courier. It is reasonable to presume that the same amount that went into the mains, also came out. At least that is the belief of Superintendent Price. This terrific drain on the water supply reduced the level in the reservoir two feet below normal. For the twenty-four hours ending Friday morning, the big pump had been operated at its fullest capacity, but at that hour the usual level in the big container was reached.

PUTS ONE OVER ON COURT

Knightstown Drug Clerk and Justice of Peace Arrange It.

Vernon Wink of Knightstown and a justice of the peace of Wayne township slipped one over on the Henry circuit court in fine shape, says the New Castle Courier. Wink is a clerk employed in a Knightstown drug store and charges in three different counts were preferred against him. Two charged violations of the liquor law and the third was selling Wink got wind of the charges and he quietly slipped over to a justice of the peace office, surrendered himself and acknowledged his guilt. He paid a fine and that was all there was to do. When the matter came up in the circuit court yesterday Prosecutor Evans filed a dismissal on the ground that the defendant settled with the State in the lower court.

"Let us suppose that I am indicted and are locked up in your jail here. I refuse the aid of the ablest attorneys. Judgment is coming, I know it and the bar is being made up. But I refuse and allow myself to be sent up without making any resistance. So we must all go before the judgment bar of God. I have been pleading with you for two weeks and still you refuse Jesus Christ as your attorney. You will not allow the blood of Jesus Christ to save you. To my mind the saddest word in the world, and it is so common, is good-bye. It means so much, for you can never tell when it will be the last one. When I left my family six months ago, I said good-bye and I did not know, and yet I do not know, that I will ever see them again. On this judgment there are going to be separations when we will never see each other again. Some of you Christians, for the sake of a little pleasure allow your friends to go down to hell. You will have to give an account."

cerned about the salvation of the unsaved here than are some of us church people," he declared. He quoted a Bible passage in which he showed that a man in hell asked that a miracle be performed, that a spirit be brought from heaven and a body from the grave, and sent on earth to plead with his brethren to be saved.

"If men knew a few years ago would come back here and recite some of their experiences in hell, you would believe them," asserted the Rev. Mr. Orr, "and would be frightened, but not converted. Fright is not religion. Why I know people down in my country who joined church during the earthquake and then, after the cause of the fear had passed, they went back to the same old path of sins. That is the reason I am not telling these graveyard stories every night in order to get you wrought up. I could fill these benches here in front but it would do no good."

He pointed out that God has sworn that everyone must give an account some day. He stated that it is so common for the unsaved persons to brand the Christian man or woman as a hypocrite. He wondered why they should make such assertions since all must account for themselves and no other before the judgment bar of God.

"The judgment bar of God awaits every man and woman in this world," he continued, "whether or not they are willing or prepared. We try to get people to this meeting and we plead with them to accept Christ, but we can not force them, because we wouldn't if we could and we couldn't if we would. It is all bound up in that one word 'shall.' It is universal.

"You may laugh at Christianity and its preachers and you may scoff at religion but the day will come when we will all be judged and you and I will have to give an account. Some day your blood will be chilled and you will be ushered into the presence of God. You will be there in your own personality and you will be there in your own individuality. We will recognize each other as we do here on earth. There's no escape."

"But we must give account of what? We must give an account of our opportunities and privileges to do good. I am weighed down by the responsibility that I feel when I think that I have preached to hundreds and thousands of people and yet that I may have allowed one to go who could have been saved. You must give account of the training you have had and the Christian training you have had from a dear father and mother. The fellow with a Christian environment here on earth will have to give a greater account than the fellow who was raised in the streets. We must give an account of the unsaved people we have neglected. Unsaved man, you must give an account of the obscene language you have used and the other evils that you have lived in.

"Some of you people will have a fearful accounting to make. I am told that this town was once 'dry' and that the voters voted to return the saloons. I am told there are men who claim to be Christians who either voted for the return of the saloons or else showed no interest whatever in the campaign. You fellows will have to give an account for you are responsible for all of the dirt, filth and evil that results from these bars."

The evangelist pointed out that votes are becoming to mean more to a man every year. He said that the voter stood for something. "When the Lord God puts a man officially in hell," he said, "where will you be personally? We can't separate ourselves that way. You are setting in motion influences that will some time form into an immense wave which will catch up its bosom here and there things that will send some one toward heaven or some one toward hell. Some of you people, if you would just let yourselves out and go talk to some of these unsaved, you might bring them to Christ. You must give an account of your influence."

"Let us suppose that I am indicted and are locked up in your jail here. I refuse the aid of the ablest attorneys. Judgment is coming, I know it and the bar is being made up. But I refuse and allow myself to be sent up without making any resistance. So we must all go before the judgment bar of God. I have been pleading with you for two weeks and still you refuse Jesus Christ as your attorney. You will not allow the blood of Jesus Christ to save you. To my mind the saddest word in the world, and it is so common, is good-bye. It means so much, for you can never tell when it will be the last one. You will have to give an account."

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Again at the Cabin.

They were two weary days reaching Carson City, traveling along the open trail yet meeting with no one, not even a mail coach passing them. Evidently the Indians were so troublesome as to interrupt all traffic with Santa Fe and the more western forts. The slowness of their progress was on account of the General, whose condition became worse in spite of Fairbain's assiduous attentions. With no medicine the doctor could do but little to relieve the sufferings of the older man, although he declared that his illness was not a serious one, and would yield quickly to proper medical treatment. They constructed a rude travois from limbs of the cottonwood, and securely strapped him thereon, one man leading the horse, while the doctor tramped behind.

Keith, fretting more and more over this necessary delay, and now obsessed with the thought that Hawley must have rejoined his party on the Arkansas and gone south with them, finally broke away from the others and rode ahead, to gather together the necessary horses and supplies in advance of their arrival. He could not drive from his mind the remembrance of the gambler's attempted familiarity with Hawley, when he had her, as he then supposed, safe in his power once before in that lonely cabin on the Salt Fork. Now, angry with puffed ambition, and a victim of her trickery, there was no guessing to what extremes the desperado might resort. The possibilities of such a situation made the slightest delay in rescue an agony almost unbearable. Reaching Carson City, and perfectly reckless as to his own safety there from arrest, the plainsman lost no time in perfecting arrangements for pushing forward. Horses and provisions were procured, and he very fortunately discovered in town two cowboys belonging to the "Bar X" outfit, their work there accomplished and about ready to return to the ranch on the Canadian, who gladly allied themselves with his party, looking forward to the possibilities of a fight with keen anticipation. Keith was more than ever delighted with adding these to his outfit, when, on the final arrival of the others, the extra man brought from Sherman announced that he had had enough, and was going to remain there. No efforts made revealed any knowledge of Hawley's presence in Carson City; either he had not been there, or else his friends were very carefully concealing the fact. The utter absence of any trace, however, led

Keith to believe that the gambler had gone elsewhere—probably to Fort Larned—for his new outfit, and this belief left him more fully convinced than ever of the fellow's efforts to conceal his trail.

The party escorting Waite reached the town in the evening, and in the following gray dawn the adventurers forded the river, and mounted on fresh horses and fully equipped, headed forth into the sand hills. The little company now consisted of Keith, Fairbain, who, in spite of his roundness of form had proven himself hard and fit, Neb, having charge of the single pack-horse, the scout Bristoe, and the two cowboys of the "Bar X," rough, wiry fellow, accustomed to exposure and peril. It was emphatically a fighting outfit, and to be trusted in emergency.

They followed the cattle trail south toward the Salt Fork, as this course would afford them a camp at the only water-hole in all that wide desert lying between. With this certainty of water, they ventured to press their animals to swifter pace, although the sand made traveling heavy, and the trail itself was scarcely discernible. It was a hard, wearisome ride, hour after hour through the same dull, dreary landscape of desolation, the hot, remorseless sun beating down upon them, reflecting up into their blistered faces from the hot surface of sand. There was scarcely a breath of air, and the bodies of men and horses were bathed in perspiration. Not a cloud hung in the blue sky; no wing of a bird broke the monotony of distance, no living animal crept across the blazing surface of the desert.

Occasionally a distant mirage attracted the eye, making the dead reality even more horrible by its semblance to water, yet never tempting them to stray aside. After the first mile conversation ceased, the men riding grimly, silently forward, intent only on covering all the distance possible. Late that night they camped at the water-hole, sleeping as best they could, scorched by the chill wind which swept over them and lashed grit into exposed faces. With the first gray of dawn they swung stiffened forms into the saddles and rode on, straight as the crow flies, for the Salt Fork. They attained that stream at sundown, gray with sand dust, their faces streaked with perspiration, feeling as though the sun rays had burned their brains, with horses fairly reeling under them.

According to Keith's calculation this cattle-herd must be fully ten miles below where the cabin sought was situated; two hours' rest, with water and food, would put both horses and men again in condition, and the traveling was easier along the bank of the Fork. With this in mind, cinches were loosened, the animals turned out to graze, and the men, snatching a hasty bite, flung themselves wearily on the ground.

All but Fairbain were asleep when Keith aroused them once more, a little before nine, unable in his impatience to brook longer delay. Within ten minutes horses were saddled, weapons looked to carefully, and the little party began their advance through the darkness, moving cautiously over the uneven ground, assisted greatly by the bright desert stars gleaming down upon them from the cloudless sky overhead. The distance proved somewhat less than had been anticipated, and Keith's watch was not yet at eleven, when his eyes revealed the fact that they had reached the near vicinity of the lonely island on which the cabin stood.

Reining in his horse sharply, he swung to the ground, the others instantly following his example, realizing they had reached the end of the route. Hands instinctively loosened revolvers in readiness for action, the younger of the "Bar X" men whistling softly in an effort to appear unconcerned. Keith, with a gesture, gathered them more closely about him.

"If Hawley is here himself," he said quietly, watching their faces in the starlight, "he will certainly have a guard set, and there may be one anyhow. We can't afford to take chances, for there will be five men, at least, on the island, and possibly several more. If they are looking for trouble they will naturally expect it to come from the north—consequently we'll make our attack from the opposite direction, and creep in on them under the shadow of the corral. The first thing I will do is to get as fast as you can. I'll take Bristoe and you two "Bar X" men along with me, and when we turn loose with our shooting irons you can all reckon the fight is on. Any of you got questions to ask?"

No one said anything, the silence accented by the desert wind howling mournfully in the branches of near-by cottonwood.

"All right then, boys, don't get excited and go off half cocked; be easy on your trigger fingers. Come along, you fellows who are traveling with me."

The four crossed the stream, wading to their waists in the water, their horses left bunched on the south bank, and finally crawled out into a bunch of mesquite. As they crept along through the darkness, whatever doubts Keith might have previously felt regarding the presence on the island of the party sought were dissipated by the unmistakable noise made by numerous horses in the corral. Slowly, testing each step as they advanced, so no sound should betray them, the four men reached the shelter of the stockade. The older of the "Bar X" men lifted himself by his hands, and peered cautiously over.

"Eight horses in thar," he announced soberly; then turned to Keith. "Say, Jack, what do you figure this shebang to be, anyhow? You don't reckon it's old Sanchez's outfit, do yer?"

"Likely as not, Joe, though I never saw him around here."

Joe filled his cheek with tobacco, staring about through the darkness.

"Well, if that ol' cuss is yere now weuns is sure in fer a fight," he commented positively.

They rounded the corral fence on hands and knees, crawled into a bunch of bushes somewhat to the rear of the silent, desolate-appearing cabin, and lay down flat behind a pile of saddles, from which position they could plainly discern the rear door. There was no movement, no evidence anywhere that a living soul was about the place. Keith could barely distinguish that it was Bristoe lying next to him.

"Had their camp over there in the corner of the corral when I was here before," he said in a whisper. "Where do you suppose they can be now?"

The wary scout lifted his head, sniffing into the darkness like a pointer dog.

"West o' thar cabin thar, out o' thar wind, most likely. I smell tobacco."

Even as the words left his lips a man came sauntering slowly around the eastern corner, his outlines barely visible, but the red glow of a pipe bowl showing plainly. He stopped, directly facing them, yawning sleepily, and then turned the other corner. Another moment and they distinctly heard a voice:

"Hustle up thar now, Manuel, an' turn out; it's your watch; wake up, dam yer—maybe that'll bring yer life."

The remedy applied to the sleeper must have been efficacious, as, an instant later, another figure slouched into view, the new arrival rubbing his eyes with one hand, the other clutching a short-barreled gun. From the high peak of his hat it was evident this new guard was a Mexican. He walked to the corner, glanced along the east side wall toward the front of the cabin, and then, apparently satisfied the coast was clear, started toward the stream, shuffling along within a foot of where Keith lay flat on the ground. A moment later the man heard him splashing softly in the water, and Keith rolled over, his lips at Bristoe's ear.

"Slip down there, Ben," he whispered, "and quiet that fellow. I'll find out how many are on the west side. Do the job without any noise."

He waited until the scout had disappeared like a snake, not even a rustling leaf telling of his passage, and then silently crept forward himself, yet with less caution, until he was able to peer about the corner of the cabin and dimly distinguish the blanketed forms of several men lying close in against the side wall. They rested so nearly together it was difficult to separate them in that darkness, stars giving the only light, but he finally determined their number at five. Five; the Mexican would make six, and there would surely be another guard posted out in the front—seven. But there were eight horses down there in the corral. Then the eighth man—Hawley, without doubt—must be in the cabin. At the thought Keith's teeth clinched, and he had to struggle to control his passion. But no; that would never do; he must discover first exactly where the girl was located; after that they would attend to the cuss. Before creeping back to the others, he made quick examination along the rear of the cabin, but could find no visible point of weakness. He tried to recall from memory the nature of the lock on that back door, but could remember nothing except an ordinary wooden latch. If he could insert a knife into the crack that might very easily be dislodged. He drew his hunting knife for the attempt, and, first glancing about, perceived a man creeping toward him. It proved to be Bristoe.

"Fixed the greaser all right, cap, and I reckon he'll be quiet for an hour or two. Look whar he slashed me; struck a pack o' playin' keers, er I'd a got my ticket." The front of his blouse was cut wide open, and Keith thought he perceived a stain of blood.

"Pricked you as it was, didn't he?"

"Opened the skin. Thought the cuss had given up, an' got careless. What's round to the west?"

Keith's lips closed, his hand shutting hard on the knife.

"Five, and another out in front; that leaves the eighth man inside. Bring our fellows up closer, and post them where they can cover those fellows asleep, while I make an effort at breaking in here."

Bristoe crawled back like a snail, and confident the others would do their part, Keith thrust his knife blade deep into the narrow crack and began probing after the latch. In spite of all caution this effort caused a slight noise, and suddenly he started back at the sound of a woman's voice:

"What do you want? I am armed, and will fire through the door if you do not go away!"

His heart leaping with exultation, Keith put his lips close to the crack.

"Hope," he exclaimed as loudly as he dared. "This is Keith; open the door."

He could hear a little smothered cry break from her lips, and then the sound of a bar being hastily removed. An instant, and the door opened silently, just wide enough to permit her slender figure to slip through. She grasped him with her hands, turning his face to the light of the stars, and he could feel her form tremble.

"Oh, I knew you would come! I knew you would come!" she sobbed, the words barely audible.

The man's lips set firmly, yet he held her close to him, begging her not to break down now.

"It's all right, little girl," he said pleadingly, "we've got you safe, but there is a fight to be attended to. Come with me; I must ask you a question or two."

He drew her back into the fringe of bushes, placing her safely behind the stack of saddles. She was not crying any more, just clinging to him, as though she could never again bear to let him go.

"Oh, Jack, it is so good just to feel you near again."

"Yes, dear," soothingly, "and it is good to hear you say Jack, but tell me one thing—is any one else in the cabin? Is Hawley here?"

"No, no! He left us early the first morning. I haven't either seen or heard of him since. The men have left me alone since we got here; have had the cabin all to myself until tonight. I have not suffered, only mentally—from dread of what they intended doing with me—until tonight. Three men rode in here just before sundown—two Mexicans and an Indian. One of them was an awful looking old man, with a scar on his cheek, and a face that made me shudder. He didn't see me, but I saw him through the window, and he had such strange eyes. All the men acted as though they were afraid of him, and I heard him say he didn't care what Hawley's orders were, he was going to sleep inside; if the girl didn't like it she could take the other room. I didn't know what to do—oh, I was so afraid of him; but what he said gave me an idea, and I went into the back room, and put up a bar across the door. When he came in he tried the door; then he spoke through it, but I never answered; and finally he lay down and went to sleep. I sat there in the dark so long, and when I heard you—I thought it must be some or the others."

He stroked her hair, whispering words of encouragement.

"That is all done with now, Hope, and we'll have those fellows at our mercy in another half-hour. But I must go now to the boys; lie here behind these saddles, and don't move until I come for you. I can trust you to remain right here?"

"Yes." He was bending over, and her eyes were upon his face. Suddenly, obeying an irresistible impulse, he clasped her to him, and their lips met.

"Sweetheart," he whispered softly.

He could not hear her answer, but her arms were about his neck.

MAY GO TO THE HIGHEST COURT

Suit Opposing New Constitution Argued.

LOSING SIDE WILL CARRY IT UP?

State Supreme Court Will BeAppealed to For an Early Decision on Contested Point, and the Case May Eventually Be Taken to the United States Supreme Court on Ground of Conflict With Federal Law.

Indianapolis, June 24.—The argument of the attorneys in the suit brought by John T. Dye to test the constitutionality of the law that proposes to submit the new constitution and to enjoin the state officers from submitting the proposed new organic law to the people at the election of 1912, has closed. There were twenty-three hours and thirty-five minutes of solid argument, making what is probably the longest argument held in an Indiana court in recent years.

Nearly all the attorneys submitted briefs, and Judge Remster asked that each side submit its draft of the statement of facts in the case to him by next Thursday. These drafts will be used to assist the court in arriving at his conclusion for a statement of facts. Judge Remster said he hoped to be able to announce his decision in the case by July 14.

The losing side at once will appeal to the Indiana supreme court. It is thought likely, should occasion seem to require it, that the case may eventually reach the United States supreme court, as the plaintiff alleges the proposed new constitution is in violation of the federal constitution.

ALLEGES CONSPIRACY

Counsel For Knotts Says Mayor's Indictment Was Political Plot.

Valparaiso, Ind., June 24.—Probably the most important statement yet made in the case of Mayor Thomas E. Knotts and others, of Gary, now on trial before Special Judge Charles H. Rensselaer, was that made by W. J. McAleer for the defense, in which he said he expected to show that the indictment of Knotts is a conspiracy for political purposes.

The attorneys for the state have already introduced the testimony of fifteen witnesses, and Attorney William J. Whinery said that he expected to introduce the testimony from at least twenty-five or thirty more. The trial may last for another week.

STRANGE DISAPPEARANCE

Young Man Who Had Been Unable to Sleep Is Missing.

Danville, Ind., June 24.—Clifford Custer, son of Police Judge Vane Custer and one of the best-known young men of this city, has been missing for more than a week, and his wife and father are greatly worried over his prolonged absence. Custer is employed by the Big Four railroad at Lyons, and the last seen of him was when he left his home Friday night of last week, presumably for his work. His father says the young man has not been able to sleep for two weeks and he thinks this has had something to do with his disappearance.

Police Are Investigating.

Fowler, Ind., June 24.—Peter Larsen, aged sixty-three, a retired farmer, was found dead in a cistern in the rear of his home here. It was at first supposed he had been murdered, but later developments tended to support the suicide theory. The case, however, has several mysterious features. Larsen's widow was arrested, pending investigation.

Has Engaged Several Lawyers.

Franklin, Ind., June 24.—The application of Ralph Polk of Greenwood for a guardian for his father, James T. Polk, the canner, who married his housekeeper a few days ago, was set for trial Oct. 30. Mr. Polk has engaged several lawyers to fight the application for a guardian, which alleges that he is mentally and physically unsound.

Victim of Strange Delusion.

Vincennes, Ind., June 24.—Mrs. John Thorn, aged fifty-three, wife of a Harrison township farmer, hanged herself with a chain to an apple tree while under the delusion that she would be murdered or burned. Before committing suicide she covered the kitchen floor with kerosene and attempted to set the house on fire.

Incendiary Suspected.

Brookville, Ind., June 24.—The large tobacco barn and the house on the farm of Robert H. Cook burned mysteriously. The loss is $3,000, with $1,000 insurance. Incendiary is suspected.

Quarreled With Mother, Killed Self.

Greensburg, Ind., June 24.—James Walter Zaring, aged twenty-two, committed suicide following a quarrel with his mother.

What does drink cost in human misery? It costs millions of money, myriads of criminals, thousands of paupers, thousands of ruined women, hundreds of thousands goaded by misery into suicide or madness, with every blossom of what might have been the garland of their lives, blighted as by a fury's breath.—F. W. Farrar.

MONIS WILL RESIGN

French Cabinet Hasn't Confidence of Chamber of Deputies.

Paris, June 24.—The French ministry was defeated in the chamber of deputies yesterday afternoon by a vote of 248 to 233. As the question of confidence was involved in the vote, the resignation of the ministry is anticipated. Premier Monis has decided to resign. He could not do it yesterday, as President Fallières is at Rouen attending the celebration there. The present cabinet was formed on March 2 with M. Monis as premier. He succeeded M. TRI KAPPA GIRLS HAVE EVACUATED

The music was furnished by a four-piece orchestra of Indianapolis. The programs were in keeping with the affairs as they were decidedly out of the ordinary. The men's program was a black card case with a Tri Kappa skull and cross bones, a skeleton and three "Ks" painted in white on the front. The girl's program was black with the same figures outside, but the inside was made so that they may be used as a pin cushion.

T. W. Lytle's reception and entertainment at his store yesterday afternoon at four-thirty o'clock proved to be all that the program implied, "A Mystery—And What You Will Be" and then even more. Each girl was stopped as she entered the door and a tiny, white skeleton that was an exact duplicate of the human skeleton, was pinned on her with a black ribbon, as a souvenir. Will M. Sparks was the dispenser of the high sounding terms and the chief of ceremonies.

He introduced Prof. C. F. Martense soloist and Miss Amelia Kreckles, piano soloist and accompanist, both from the Indianapolis College of Musical Arts, who gave a program of an hour's duration. A stage was erected in the west end of the store and the guests stood back of the counters and in the center of the room.

The program which Mr. Martense gave was very entertaining. He sang many solos which were roundly applauded. Especially was he praised for his manner of singing "Drink to me Only With Thine Eyes." He sang a solo which was written especially for the Tri Kappa girls and which cleverly brought in the names of the host and his daughter, Miss Hazel Lytle. Miss Kreckles, who has been heard here before, played several solos on the piano. Many were the compliments paid to Mr. and Mrs. Lytle at the close of the musical part of the program and it was pronounced as one of the most enjoyable functions of the convention festivities.

Following the program, Will Sparks conducted a drawing in which some of the visiting girls were brought to the stage and made the butt of some of his witticisms. One of the guests drew a wedding ring, which was presented to her after many prophesies and forecasts as the time when she would best have the opportunity to use such a gift. Another received a lamp after a very solemn, and withal that humorous, speech of presentation by Mr. Sparks. He took that occasion to allude to some of the married women among the guests, whom, he said, were not married until they were thirty-five and that there was still hope for most of the girls.

The decorations were a lavish profusion of black and white. The ceiling was arrayed in black and white ribbons of crimp paper and black pennants, containing the images of skulls and cross bones adorned the walls. Skulls and cross bones hung from the ceiling and many beautiful bunches of sweet peas, grown from the seed which Mr. Lytle gave away on his annual seed day, were used in decorating the counters in an artistic manner.

The next annual meeting was given to the Anderson girls as they first extended an invitation. The girls from the Greensburg chapter would have liked very much to have had the next annual event in their city, but were content with waiting a year. They extended an invitation at the closing business session yesterday for the convention in 1913 and it is likely that the meeting will go there. The convention will be held next June the exact date to be set by the members of the Anderson chapter.

Begin Sleeping on a Better Mattress Tonight

THE COTTON used in these felt mattresses is cleaned and purified by a special process of steam and dry heat. That makes it absolutely sanitary.

The purified cotton is worked and beaten into soft flaked sheets. Every particle of foreign matter that might interfere with the elasticity of the mattress has been removed.

Fifteen of these downy sheets are piled high on top of each other. Then the billowy mass is carefully compressed, covered with a high grade of imported ticking, and tufted.

This mattress will never lose its elasticity or become lumpy. You could not ask for one more perfectly comfortable.
